YARN CREW

I have pondered long enough about how to write this article and decided enough procrastination, today was the day.

Volunteering at Canton Woods has given me a different perspective on things, and I want to share my thoughts.

I organize the Yarn Crew which is a group of lovely ladies and one wonderful gentleman. We operate primarily from the donations given to us by the community...yarn, needlework, fabric, items for macrame, silk flowers, and all sorts of craft items. We make things for donations to St. Joes and Menorah Park.

We also have a craft sale in December and just this year had our first in July. We could not do it without the generous donations we get. So here is the point I wanted to make...

I am in awe of the kind donations we get. I never know what I am going to find in the storeroom. You would think it was my birthday, the way I open the bags and "ohhh" and "ahh" over everything. Yet, there are times when I must stop and say a little silent prayer. Many donations are a result of house cleaning after a great sadness... a loved one has died. Enclosed many times I find half-finished projects, a sock just ready to have the heel turned, a beautiful cowl that just needs a few rows done, baby sweaters and blankets meant for a new arrival, fabric half sewn into the outfit. Seeing all these things makes me sad. I know from experience how much work and love goes into those homemade items. I also know handwork is a dying art. Someone worked on those projects out of love and now this project sits in my storeroom. What happens to it? If there are projects that I think I can finish, I will complete them. Depending on how much the project is completed, I ravel out the yarn and the Yarn Crew will use it making a donated item. Many times, I just give a silent moment of gratitude. In my small way, I try to give tribute to the anonymous person who made it because I know I am looking at hard work, time, effort, and most of all LOVE.

Edwina Hay

Yarn Crew Reports In

The members of yarn crew continue to try new things in preparation for the Christmas craft sale...yes, I said Christmas. A place to find handmade gifts at great prices...wind spinners, crocheted bowl cozies, aprons, and ruanas (capes) made from donated fabric are just some of the newer items we present this year.

Donations have poured in and the stockroom is bursting at the seams... so I put out a plea on Facebook asking if anyone needed anything. So many times art teachers are the victims of budget cuts and I wanted to support them by sharing our bounty. A former student who teaches is creating student seating for reading nooks. She is making seating from milk crates with fabric covered foam cushions. Canton Woods provided the fabric so she can cover the cushions. As her former teacher, I loved it that Canton Woods, through the generous donations from the community, was able to help out. I also gave her burlap, upholstery fabric, macrame cord, and other craft items so she could spread the wealth. Donations of lap robes and walker bags were also delivered to another former student of mine who works at Menorah Park. Donations to St. Joseph's will also be delivered this week.

Canton Creations... third Tuesday of the Month 4-5:30pm
Please sign up at the center...

SEPTEMBER

The group learned how to braid using a Japanese method called Kumihimo. By using a foam disk and silk cord beautiful bracelets and necklaces can be created.

OCTOBER CRAFT

October craft will be a repeat of the mosaic class. This was a very popular class, and it was requested to do a repeat because Christmas is coming and these creations make really beautiful gifts. Because it is kind of messy, we will be doing it outside if it isn't too cold. If the weather doesn't cooperate, we will move inside and be very careful.

Those who are doing this for the first time you will need to bring...

9x12 or smaller picture frame with glass
E6000 glue

Paper towels, paper towels, paper towels

Gloves if you want to protect your hands

Glass cleaner

A smile

Glass and grout will be supplied
Class on October 18 at 4pm.
Class limit 12 No Fee

NOVEMBER CRAFT

Danish Neisse Christmas Craft...Santa Logs. I have included a link <http://smartgirlsdry.com/christmas> Samples will be on display at the center. These Santa's can be big enough to greet your company on the front porch or your entryway. Or.. make them smaller to fit on the mantle of your fireplace. Great as gifts.

I will supply a variety of logs or if you want your own specific type and know someone with a chainsaw; bring in a log of your choice.

Paint and embellishments will be provided unless you want certain types of ribbon which you can bring in for yourself.

Eyes can be painted. We have google eyes if you would rather use those.

We will use pompoms or wooded beads for noses

You should bring..

A variety of artists paint brushes

No class limit No cost

Book Club News

I do not read the books for the book club because of my restless leg syndrome. I listen to them on long trips. Listening to this book with a lot of oral Spanish made it a teeny bit hard at first because I couldn't keep the characters straight... once I was able to get past that hurdle it was full speed ahead.

The Spanish Daughter was written because the author was researching inventions patents which were created by women. The inspiration for the characters was because it was a woman who invented a cocoa grinder. A young woman, Puri, finds it necessary to impersonate her murdered husband while traveling to Central America from Spain. Her father, the owner of the prestigious cocoa plantation, has passed away and she has been summoned for the reading of the will. Her husband's murder was a mistake; she was the intended victim. In Central America she meets her step siblings... her father's other family only to discover she is the sole heir of the plantation.

Believe it or not Chocolate candy has not been around a long time. The main character introduced her new family to the sweet delights of chocolate that has been sweetened and milk is added. The bean is no longer bitter. Puri still disguised as her husband shares her knowledge of sweet chocolate which she learned from her grandmother.

In an attempt to discover the murderer who originally intended to kill Puri, the main character, disguises herself as her husband. Despite the authors description of Puri, as a big boned woman, I found it hard to believe that her deception lasted as long as it did. She/he had to thwart the advances of prostitutes and the expectations of other men. A reader would find it humorously ironic that she was amazed at the differences in expectations of men and women. She was appalled at the double standard.

The one particular conversation that we remember and were hoping to discuss with in the group was the concept of "goodness"? What is it to be truly a good person? If someone does something knowing they will be praised for it, is that truly goodness? What motivates a person to be good and are people born with it or is it something that develops? This would have been great for a topic of discussion, however with one other person in the book club meeting there can't be a whole lot of back and forth with differing points of view.

Many of the minor characters in the novel became major characters and there was a lot of deception among them. Near the end of the novel, the murderer is discovered, and the plantation is ruined due to fungus which destroys everything and leaves her no better off than her stepsiblings. Puri uses her resources from previous relationships and eventually finds success in a chocolate business.

While discussing the book a visitor popped in to chat with us. I had asked her to come and pick up some art supplies I wanted to share with her daughter, a former student. She suggested our next book, MAGPIE MURDERS by Anthony Horowitz. She highly recommended it and may even join us via ZOOM since she will be in Arizona for the winter months. We will meet October 18th at 2:00pm in the library.

PLEASE COME BACK TO BOOK CLUB OR TRY IT OUT FOR THE FIRST TIME!!!!

Travel Reflections

Hi everyone! We have three big trips planned for September and October. This newsletter was due when we were in Maine. I will comment on the trip and Pacific Northwest for the November newsletter.

I have put together Cape Cod and Mackinac Island for 2023. Check out the details as both are great trips. Mackinac Island is an island in Michigan where the movie "Somewhere in Time" was filmed. There are no cars and you have to travel around the island by horse and buggy. Truly a trip one must do at least once in a lifetime.

Belle Tours LLC will sponsor a concert with Jon Vona on October 31st at the Center. He is a talented entertainer and I am sure you will enjoy his music. Contact me for info.

Until next month, take care and God Bless.
